Atlanta, GA -- October 19, 2005 -- TALENThire.com, an Atlanta-based recruiting technology firm, proudly announced today the addition of their 250th client since its launch in November 2004.

“We’ve been quite well-received in the market by solving some unique recruiting challenges, and we’ve been constantly gaining momentum,” said Mike Veronesi, managing partner for TALENThire.com. The company streamlines recruiter vendor management while offering cost saving initiatives through a “name your price” fee model on companies’ fee-approved positions.

“We’re addressing our corporate clients’ needs through proactively attracting Talent Agents,” Veronesi explained. “We’ve been asked to assist in securing diversity recruiters as well as recruiters with specific industry specialties, and we’ve delivered.” With clients such as Motorola, American Express Incentive Services, GE Consumer Finance, and Publix, TALENThire.com provides a streamlined process and increased talent pool to fulfill their client’s needs through a single point of billing.

Launched in November 2004, TALENThire.com is a patent pending, web based Vendor Management/Sourcing Tool that allows companies to lower their costs, manage their vendors, and potentially generate revenue from their HR departments. Targeted to corporate HR/Recruiting, contingency search firms, and contract recruiters, TALENThire.com provides immediate cost savings through “name your fee” pricing for fee approved positions, vendor management solutions, reduced outplacement/downsizing costs, and revenue generating activities to HR/recruiting – not only cost-savings, but true profit potential to corporate HR and recruiting.

In addition, TALENThire.com offers a low cost business development tool to recruiting agencies, allowing them access to positions at Fortune 100 clients.
